PARIS.

The present disturbances in Paris have started the inquiry as to whether it would not be better for the French capital to be located in some other place, and this question has been discussed with considerable ability by writers upon both sides of the Atlantic.

The miners, besides,—brutal and fierce as many of them no doubt are,—assert, and probably not without some truth, that they have often been cheated in former compacts with the operators, and that they are victimized in various ways by combinations of capital; and before a final settlement of the existing and similar troubles is made, there should be concessions of various kinds to the rugged toilers of the coal regions.

VIRTUOUS TAMMANY.

A JOINT resolution to punish bribery has been passed by the New York Legislature, which will undoubtedly produce some highly important results, if it is anything more than a hypocritical performance to blind the eyes of ignorant voters.

THE COAL TROUBLES.

The board of arbitration appointed to settle the coal troubles have adjourned temporarily, without adjusting all the points in dispute, and without making definite arrangements for resumption.

Despite the numerous outbreaks in the coal regions, no clear and well-defined principles of any character seem to have been established heretofore, and there has been a total disregard of law, order, and justice.

SCHENCK'S COLUMN.

A SIMPLE ACCOUNT OF THE DISCOVERY AND WONDERFUL EFFECTS OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT PULMONIC REMEDIES.

If a man were asked why he insured his life, the question would be regarded as a very simple one and scarcely requiring an answer, for the reason that the advantages of life insurance are so universally admitted that to doubt its utility would be to err in the very face of reason and common sense.

If consumption were not a disease as insidious as it is fatal, and if it were, as is asserted by the medical faculty generally, incurable, there would be no apology for consumptives who, day after day year after year, refuse to heed the warning given by a hacking cough, a hectic cheek, cold and clammy night-sweats, and other distressing symptoms which are the almost certain forerunners of deep-seated pulmonary disease, and which, when thoroughly ingrained into the system, can be removed only by the use of the special remedies and the observance of precautions the very opposite of those usually given by physicians.

Many years ago these thoughts suggested themselves to the mind of DR. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK, now of Philadelphia, but at the time of which we speak a resident of New Jersey. Himself a confirmed consumptive, and with little or no hope of recovery but with sufficient love of life to prompt him to make an effort to live, he patiently and thoughtfully applied himself to the scientific study of the disease which was silently, but nevertheless surely, bearing him to the grave.

THE BEST MEDICAL attendance had been secured. Remedy after remedy was prescribed, but all in vain. The ruthless disease continued its fast hold upon him, and he was sent to Moorestown, N. J., to die. The last vestige of hope had faded away. His friends, who from time to time visited him, bade him farewell, never again expecting to see him alive. But Dr. Schenck, ill as he was, and hopeless as seemed his case, did not yield to despair. Weak and prostrated, and physically unable even to walk across the room, his mind was still active. He believed that God had not soot diseases

WITHOUT PROVIDING REMEDIES, and, through friends and visitors, continued to make unceasing inquiries for certain heroic remedies the virtues of which he understood had been satisfactorily proved in cases of pulmonary disease. His patience and perseverance were at length rewarded. The long-sought

HERBS AND ROOTS WERE OBTAINED. The preparations of these were crude and simple, but their healing qualities were present notwithstanding. He took them regularly, adopted a system of plain but nutritious diet, remained in his chamber, avoided draughts of cold air, exercised within doors to as great an extent as his impaired strength would allow, and in a little while a change for the better was perceptible. The tough mucus that clogged the lungs and bronchial tubes was now freely and easily expectorated.

APETITE RETURNED, and with it came strength of body and cheerfulness of mind. Cough, fever, night sweats, and pains began to leave him. Friends beheld the change with amazement, as it had never been expected. His former rotundity, his step became elastic and firm, and the happy result was that he

WAS RESTORED TO PERFECT HEALTH, and is to-day a man advanced in years, but hale, hearty, and strong, and weighing over two hundred and twenty-five pounds. Deeply impressed with the wonderful cure that had been wrought, and thankful for his narrow escape from certain death, he resolved to apply himself to the study of medicine, and devote the remainder of his days to efforts to alleviate the sufferings of his fellow-creatures. As would be natural, his principal attention was directed to the subject of Pulmonary Diseases. The most eminent physicians in the country had assured him

CONSUMPTION COULD NOT BE CURED, and that he, being a consumptive, must die! But there he was, a living, breathing refutation of the assertions of those who had said that he was as good as the hopeless victim of the most dreaded of all diseases stood up before the world.

A FURTHER STRONG MAN, and such he is to-day, though thirty years have elapsed since his miraculous restoration to health. "The medicines that cured me will certainly cure others. Why should not others be rescued from a premature grave as I have been? Why should not the healing virtues of roots and herbs that saved my life save the lives of thousands of my fellow-men who are victims of consumption? I reasoned Dr. Schenck as he applied himself to the preparation of his great remedies. After years of experiment he succeeded in perfecting his

PREPARED SYRUP in a form so attractive and so palatable to the taste that patients take it regularly for a long period without becoming nauseated by it. Hearing of his remarkable cure and the thousands and thousands of patients locked to him for advice and medicines, he was supplied, and to-day there are many healthy men and women living who owe their health and strength wholly to

DR. SCHENCK'S MEDICINES. Not content with a single medicine, Dr. Schenck applied the valuable knowledge he had gained to the preparation of a medicine that was called the Pulmonic Syrup should have an assistant in its great work of restoring the system. While it drove out the impurities, new and good blood was wanted. This could be secured only by means of the digestive organs in perfect condition. To accomplish this,

AN ACTIVE LIVER was essential. With this important organ in a torpid state, healthful digestion was impossible, and without healthful digestion there could be no pure blood. Hence it was that Dr. Schenck experimented with his

FAMOUS MANDRAKE PILLS. The experiments were satisfactory. He found that they exercised an almost magical influence upon the liver and stomach. The former was stimulated to healthful activity, its secretions were promoted. The bile and diseased slime which accumulated in the bowels, and rendered the system inert and unresponsive, were removed by the use of the Mandrake Pills; the appetite was increased; the food taken was properly assimilated, good blood was created in consequence, and the result a total

BANISHMENT OF DISEASE. All that was now needed was a tonic that would give nerve and energy to the still weak but perfectly cured consumptive. The system was entirely healthy, but the man was weak, and he needed strength to carry it. Acting silently but powerfully in conjunction with the Pulmonic Syrup and the Mandrake Pills,

THE SEAWEED TONIC fulfilled its great mission. Being an alkali, it speedily corrected any acidity of the stomach. It imparted tone and vigor to the entire system. It fitted the restored patient for a resumption of his ordinary business duties, and put the capstone upon the great remedial structure which Dr. Schenck, after years of patient personal experience and patient scientific effort, had reared for the benefit of the human race.

ONE THING YET REMAINED to be done. While this great work of restoration was in progress Dr. Schenck was thoroughly convinced that exposure to draughts of cold air—to the rough, rasping winds of early spring and late fall, or to the chilling blasts of winter, would hasten death to the patient. Hence it was that he adopted the plan of having his patients remain in their apartments, and taking all needful exercise there, until the diseased lungs were PERFECTLY HEALED, and what is called "pure fresh air" could be borne by them without the danger of provoking a return to the dreaded disease. This system has proved like a charm. The bold assertion of the medical faculty that consumption cannot be cured has been completely refuted, and Dr. Schenck's great remedies have triumphed over all opposing elements.

During the thirty-four years of Dr. Schenck's very successful practice, he has frequently examined and cured hundreds of patients in the cities of Boston, New York, and Philadelphia. Being well advanced in years, his professional visits to other cities have been discontinued, though he still continues to give his personal attention to the examination of patients at his principal office in Philadelphia, being assisted in his arduous duties by his son, DR. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK, JR., who is a regular graduate of Jefferson Medical College, and is in every way qualified for the efficient discharge of the important duties devolving upon him.

Patients who desire a thorough examination of their lungs, with the aid of DR. SCHENCK'S RESPIROMETER, can be accommodated at all times and receive the needed information as to their condition, and the method of treatment, for Five Dollars. Consultation gratis. 4 11 9264p
